You will find great lessons on branding in this book and the author has an important message for companies. However I found myself having a hard time reading this book and imprinting its message clearly in my brain.Here are some of the main take-aways :*Values*Every brand carries deep within itself values from which every branding endeavors should start with. Think "Start with Why" by Simon Sinek. Another way to say it: "Stand for something or you will stand for nothing" People Brands derive their power from people—customers, employees, intermediaries, stakeholders, the press—and the relationships and experiences they have with your company. Everything Matters The author speaks about Brand Environmentalism. Everything in the environment of your brand is important: the way your frontline employees dress or speak, the toilet paper in your retail space or the kind of partnership you form. Because everything related to your brand will form the exact perception of that brand in people's mind. Business for good Companies have superpowers, among them the power of their brands. They should use them to do more good. Not only it is good for our planet, it's also good for business. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Brilliant By Phanatic Brilliant.
