Ronald L. Capasso, John C. Daresh : The School Administrator Internship Handbook: Leading, Mentoring, and Participating in the Internship Program before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The School Administrator Internship Handbook: Leading, Mentoring, and Participating in the Internship Program:

Five StarsBy Jose HernandezExcellent0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. not what I was looking forBy AngelaI was hoping that this book would give some research on effective school leadership internships. Instead, it is much more of a companion journal for ED leadership interns. The book does explain key components of the internship, but it's audience is not truly clear. In some places it appears that the author is addressing the interns themselves, but in other places, the author seems to be addressing university internship coordinators. Needless to say, I did not get the information that I was looking for.

Capasso and Daresh offer a hands-on guide to creating and implementing a program that can turn preservice administrators into transformational leaders

About the Author Ronald L. Capasso is currently an Associate Professor of Educational Leadership at Rowan University, Glassboro, New Jersey. He has spent 30 years in public school education, having served twelve years as a superintendent of schools in Pennsville, New Jersey and five years as an Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Ramsey, New Jersey. He has also served as a consultant and speaker for the U.S. Office of Education, the New Jersey State Department of Education, and various government agencies and school districts. John C. Daresh is professor of educational leadership at the University of Texas at El Paso. Over the years, he has held faculty or administrative appointments at the University of Cincinnati, The Ohio State University, the University of Northern Colorado, and Illinois State University. He has also worked as a consultant on high school reform and administrator professional development for universities, state departments of education, national and state professional associations, and individual schools and districts across the United States, and also in Barbados, Canada, France, Holland, Israel, Turkey, South Africa, and Taiwan. By far, the bulk of Daresh's international service has been in the United Kingdom where he served an advisor and trainer for the School Management Task Force that developed and promoted support programs for beginning headteachers, the National College for School Leadership, the Welsh Office of Education, the North West Network for Diploma Development in Cheshire, Manchester Metropolitan University, the University of Lincoln, the University of Hull, CREATE Consultancies, and literally dozens of Local Education Authorities and individual schools across England and Wales. Daresh recently completed three years of service as the lead consultant on principal mentoring programs for the Chicago Public Schools as that megadistrict was faced with the challenge of bringing in mostly inexperienced principals to serve in nearly of the school system's elementary and high schools.
